Oregon & Texas A&M Women Stay Tight

Chart #3

In our first formchart of the year, host Oregon was rated as a 3-point favorite over defending champion Texas A&M, 67–64. Three weeks later, the Aggies had pulled to within a point, 67–66. Now that the Conferences are out of the way, both powerhouses picked up minor points, so that the gap is now a pair, 67–69. Nobody else is even in the same ballpark.

Pat Henry's A&M squad has seen its number of projected scorers fall from 13 to 9, but gained points nonetheless with the emergence of Jeneba Tarmoh as a double sprint threat.

Vin Lananna's Ducks on the other side, are now projected to have no fewer than 14 scorers, up a pair from the last chart.

There are only two new predicted winners since last time out: Charlotte Browning (Florida) in the 1500 and Arkansas in the 4 x 400.
