Florida Men See Their Margin Shrink

Chart #2

In the three weeks since we posted the first NCAA Men's Predictions of the year, defending champ Texas A&M's stock has dropped by 2 points, but favored Florida's went down by 7. As a result, the healthy 8-point lead that Mike Holloway's Gators enjoyed previously has slipped to just 3 over Pat Henry's Aggies.

Both are projected to score in 8 different events, Florida 10 times (2 in the 100 and 400, both relays, LJ, 2 in the TJ, SP, Dec), A&M 11 times: (100, 2 in the 200, 400, both relays, 2 in the TJ, JT, Dec).

With 6 events on tap in which both teams are projected to score (100, 400, 4x1, 4x4, TJ, Decathlon), no end of head-to-head battles could make for one of the more exciting team races in recent memory.

Oregon (which has added 6 points to its calculation) will get a lot of fervid local support, but to climb over either of the top 2 would need a lot of comethrough performances, which isn't completely out of the question at Hayward Field.
